

JANUARY 2013

Nurturing communities rich in creativity and culture.

Cabin Fever 2013 Has Arrived!

On January 19th, the McCall Arts & Humanities Council's annual Cabin Fever class series kicked off with "Everybody Samba!" Over the next four months, over 35 classes and lectures will take place in McCall, featuring a variety of topics ranging from dance to history to felting to ethnic cuisine, and much much more. Cabin Fever also offers a diverse selection of free community events such as slide shows, lectures, Long Valley Heritage Night (a celebration of our heritage with local presentations or panels by key community members), author visits, book discussions, and music performances.

To learn more about this year's Cabin Fever classes, visit our website at www.mccallarts.org/cabinfever to view schedules, class details, and online registration.

Now Available: Memberships & Benefits with the MAHC!

The McCall Arts & Humanities Council has unveiled their new membership system for 2013—anyone who becomes a member of the MAHC receives a 15% discount on all Cabin Fever and Creative Campus schedules, as well as early previews of upcoming events and special member-only invites! For more information on membership levels and pricing, check out www.mccallarts.org/join—once there, you can register online and become a member today!

Art School Begins

January also marks the beginning of Art School, one of the MAHC's most significant programs. Art School places a local visual or performing artist in 3rd & 5th grade classrooms in McCall, Donnelly, New Meadows, and Council for a 10-week educational residency each winter.

This high-quality program is supported by the Idaho Commission on the Arts and seeks to further the goals of 21st century learning by encouraging growth in communication, critical thinking, innovation, creativity, compassion, and collaboration. Art School objectives are also aligned with Idaho's State Curriculum Standards in the Humanities.

New Online Look for the MAHC

This fall, the McCall Arts & Humanities Council unveiled a new design for its website, located at www.mccallarts.org. Featuring updated information on all of our programs, online registration for Cabin Fever and Creative Campus classes, and a new membership program, the revamped website aims to make arts educations easily accessible to all.

The MAHC has relocated to a new space, sharing a facility with Whirling Circles Studios. You can locate the MAHC office at its new location, 125-E Commerce Street, McCall.
