

Even though we're all staying close to home right now and not gathering together for the greater good of our community, both locally and globally, there are still plenty of fun and interesting ways to explore and experience the arts and humanities around the world.

Below is an assortment of FREE resources we've curated especially for you (great for both kids and adults experiencing cabin fever!):

1. Google Arts & Culture — Take virtual tours of over 2,500 museums and art galleries around the world, access close-up images of famous paintings alongside informative articles, and more!
2. How to Toon with Joe Wos — Learn how to draw cartoons via easy-to-follow instructional videos for all ages.
3. #The100DayProject — An online challenge to create something every day for 100 days. You pick when you start (the original start date is 4/7), and you pick your preferred project(s). Great to do with kids and/or as a group of adults, too!
4. Scholastic Learn at Home — "Day-to-day projects to keep kids reading, thinking, and growing." You can select activities by grade-level.
5. HippoCampus — Explore 7,000 free videos across 13 subject areas.
6. NOVA Labs \(PBS\) — Science-based interactive games and digital "labs" for teens and lifelong learners.
7. Coloring Pages — Beautiful hand-drawn coloring pages from talented illustrator Lisel Jane Ashlock. To print, click an image, and then right-click to "Save as"/download.

Do you have favorite local/regional/global art resources you'd like to share with us?

We'd love to hear about them! Please don't hesitate to reach out to us at mccallartshumanities@gmail.com. Supporting and inspiring this community is why we're here, and we're committed to that mission during this unique time.